Home / Topics / Culture / Through Elk Island National Park Snowshoe

Lessons From A Métis-Led Snowshoe Through Elk Island National Park

By Jennifer Bain
March 14, 2023

Parks Canada / Greg Huszti

Métis Elder Lorna Wheeler leads a group of guests through Elk Island National Park's Astotin Loop.

Each Thursday at 10 a.m., Lorna Wheeler leads a group of guests through Elk Island National Park's Astotin Loop. The outdoor trek, the Traditional Knowledge Snowshoe Tour, is part of a partnership between Parks Canada and Wheeler's Métis Nation of Alberta Local #1909 that's dedicated to sharing Indigenous culture and knowledge.

"Today I'd like to make you an honorary Métis as we journey through the beautiful boreal forest at Moss Lake," the founder of Talking Rock Tours told a group of guests on the trek through Elk Island National Park on a recent Thursday.

"The cold, traditionally it was meant just for the men and it was more than just keeping your pets in, was literally like a superpower and you'd, right, because the more you snowshoed it would you kind of make different muscles for hunting and preserving your food and clothes and warmth and shelter."

Parks Canada / Greg Huszti

Talking Rock Tours founder Lorna Wheeler leads a small group through Elk Island National Park's Astotin Loop.

Dressed in the Métis sash, Wheeler's ancestral colours of red, blue and yellow, she led the group of 10 on the 5.5-kilometre trek to the Astotin Lookout, which offers a panoramic view of the park's forests, lakes and prairie.

Wheeler's ancestors were Métis fur traders and guides who lived in the Red River region, which is now Winnipeg, Manitoba, and the Métis Nation of Alberta is one of the province's five governing councils.

Elk Island National Park

Elk Island National Park Parc national Elk Island

Don't let the name fool you, Elk Island National Park is mostly home to bison and it's one to see the bison who take the lead.

Elk Island National Park is mostly home to bison and it's one to see the bison who take the lead.

Parks Canada / Greg Huszti

Tour guide Jason Gauvin looks for signs of wildlife near Elk Island National Park's Astotin Lookout.

Tour guide Jason Gauvin looks for signs of wildlife near Elk Island National Park's Astotin Lookout.

Parks Canada / Greg Huszti

Signs of deer can be found while snowshoeing the Parks Lake Trail near Elk Island National Park.

Signs of deer can be found while snowshoeing the Parks Lake Trail near Elk Island National Park.

Parks Canada / Greg Huszti

Talking Rock Tours founder Lorna Wheeler leads a group on the Astotin Lookout Trail near Elk Island National Park.

Talking Rock Tours founder Lorna Wheeler leads a group on the Astotin Lookout Trail near Elk Island National Park.

Parks Canada / Greg Huszti

Guests listen as Métis Elder Lorna Wheeler shares stories of the Métis people and their culture near Elk Island National Park.

Guests listen as Métis Elder Lorna Wheeler shares stories of the Métis people and their culture near Elk Island National Park.

Parks Canada / Greg Huszti

Lorna Wheeler and her granddaughter Kaylee Lee Wheeler-Lapoint pose for a photo on the Astotin Lookout Trail near Elk Island National Park.

Lorna Wheeler and her granddaughter Kaylee Lee Wheeler-Lapoint pose for a photo on the Astotin Lookout Trail near Elk Island National Park.

Parks Canada / Greg Huszti

Guests listen as Métis Elder Lorna Wheeler shares stories of the Métis people and their culture near Elk Island National Park.

Guests listen as Métis Elder Lorna Wheeler shares stories of the Métis people and their culture near Elk Island National Park.

Parks Canada / Greg Huszti

Parks Canada / Greg Huszti

Métis Elder and Knowledge Holder Lorna Wheeler talks to the Elk Island National Park Visitor Centre staff about her tour.

Métis Elder and Knowledge Holder Lorna Wheeler talks to the Elk Island National Park Visitor Centre staff about her tour.

Parks Canada / Greg Huszti

Parks Canada / Greg Huszti

A Métis Sash adorns Lorna Wheeler's snowshoe bag.

A Métis Sash adorns Lorna Wheeler's snowshoe bag.

Parks Canada / Greg Huszti

Parks Canada / Greg Huszti

Parks Canada / Greg Huszti